2007 Cries of London

Woman Selling Ribbons and Girl Selling Lace

Over the years, the Cries of London series had become quite popular by fans of the Carolers.® This year's pieces include a young lady selling ribbons and trims that would have been used to add color and accent to a woman's wardrobe.

Her daughter is just a step behind with a basket filled with fine laces to further entice their customers.

Included in this issue of the Caroler Chronicle,® you will find a collage of images to introduce many of the newest members of the Caroler family. Many stores are receiving their first shipments of product now, so be sure to stop by your local Caroler dealer to see Joyce's latest creations in person.

Byers' Choice Open House Event — September 29th & 30th, 2007

The Byers family has already begun plans to host a special weekend gathering at our Chalfont, PA factory on the weekend of September 29th and 30th. Like our Open House events in years past, this will be a great opportunity for Caroler® fans from across the country to come together and share in their common interests. Old friends will get reacquainted and new relationships will be made. As always, there will be plenty of activities including behind-the-scenes tours guided by the artisans who bring the Carolers to life. Limited edition pieces will be made available to those in attendance and a variety of games and activities will be planned to make the event enjoyable and memorable. During your trip, you may want to plan to spend some extra time exploring historic Bucks County. Learn more about this region and all there is to see and do by visiting www.buckscountycvb.org.

Mark your calendars now and look for more event information in our next Caroler Chronicle.®
